Research areas

• Integration of services for dysfunctional families – theoretical and practical contexts.
• Protection system of child and family – exploratory data analysis and comparative studies.
• Situation of families in Poland and in Europe (constant studies).
• Disintegration of family structures and their economic and social consequences.
• Family reintegration process in the context of children return from foster care to their biological families.
• Diagnosis and evaluation of studies in the field of social services.
• Innovative methods of work with families in crisis (Behavioral Induction Method, Family Group Conference, Relational Method, etc.)
• Conditioning of disintegration and perspectives of reinforcing marriages in crisis.
• Quality of life in families and children in foster care.
• Transforming into large families – how families experience the birth of the third and subsequent children.
• Family-centered theory and practice.

- PDF
- Print